character.
The Louisa County Business Men's Association have decided to inaugurate special public says, "trade and sale days of stock, and like purposes," to be held here the second Monday of the following months: February, April, June, August, October and December.
Sultable rtock yards will be furnished

October and December.
Sultable rtock yards will be furnished free of charge for the use of sellers and puyers of stock.

There will be public speaking from time to time on these days upon political, agricultural and other topics of general interest.

These public days are intended us subsitutes for the six abolished County Courts, on which the Joard of Supervi-sors will regularly sit somewhat as a court to transact a large amount of the county's business—especially road in-provement—and also the offices of coun-ty clerk, treasurer and District School Board will be open on these days for

business.
The association feels assured that grain

business.

The association feels assured that grain and tobacco commission merchants and large buyers of stock from a distance will readily attend, and owners desiring to sell are invited to have their stock at stock yards in good shape.

These special days will undoubtedly prove of mutual interest and benefit to both town and county citizens, and will draw together larger crowds than the regular bi-monthly County Court days, and thus will be preserved the ancient custom of monthly gatherings for social and business intercourse to which the people are so much wedded.

J. J. Porter was elected president; J. Atbray Kent, secretary; J. F. Bickers, J. Reid Wills, and H. Q. Dickinson, Business Committee, The Executive Committee will be composed of prominent men throughout the county, when appointment will be made by the president.

British bark Glencova, with a crew of twenty-seven men, loaded with nirate
from Tatal to Baltimore, ran upon pebble
shoal, two miles east of the False Cape Life Saving Station.

The dense weather made it difficult to distinguish the rig of the vessel, and for some time it was thought to be a schooner. The False Cape life-savers went to the rescue, but the crew of the ship, which was not in apparent danger, refused to leave their vessel. Assistance from Norfolk was telegraphed for at once, as an increased wind would have once, as an increased wind would have

IN MEMORIAM.

IN MEMORIAM.

James McDougall, Jr., born June 27, 1883, died January 10, 1904, in the twenty-first year of his age. The writer knew "Jamie," as he was familiarly called when but a child, and as he developed into young manhood his tender solicitude and love for his mother, his affection for his brothers and home, his politeness and genial spirit, ovidenced the golden traits essential to make a noble man. He altended regularly for years St. Paul's Church Sunday school, and once belonged to the vested choir of that church. Ho was in the employ of Drewry, Hughes and Company for over three years. His sad and watimely death has filled the hearts of his many friends with gloom and genuine soriow.

Let us hope that through the mercy and love of God, his soul is now in a purer and sweeter atmosphere than this world can furnish, and that he is now mingling with the unnumbered throng who were saved by the blood of the lamb. May heavenly balm soothe and heal the bleeding heart of his grief-stricken mother, and may the invisible golden cords of a Saviour's love draw her nearer to the cross, and may she have the grace and spirit to look to God and say! "He doeth all things well." "now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to five." "God washes the eyes by tears, until we can behold the invisible land, where tears shall came no more."
